Martin Drewry - Chair

Martin is currently the Director of Health Poverty Action. He has a long background in the voluntary sector, initially as an award-winning grass-roots community development worker in the UK, before moving to international development. After a few years as national secretary of World Action, a pioneering Methodist programme enabling young people and adults to take action for social justice, he spent the next decade as head of campaigns at Christian Aid. Here he played leading roles in Jubilee 2000, Drop the Debt, the Trade Justice Movement and was one of the coordinators of Make Poverty History. Martin's academic grounding came from the Bradford University School of Peace Studies in the mid-eighties, an experience he valued.

Shibani Bose – Vice Chair

Shibani Bose is a Social Risk and Human Rights Expert who is driven by a deep passion for incorporating the 'social' aspect into sustainable development. Currently, she holds the dynamic role of Environmental, Social, and Governance (ESG) Manager at Globeleq, a prominent renewable energy developer with a focus on Africa. In this capacity, she plays a vital role in contributing to the company's ESG initiatives, ensuring that Globeleq's operations embrace sustainable practices and make a positive impact on the communities they serve. Shibani has been an ESG professional for 15+ years. Prior to her current role, she worked with FMO the Dutch Development Bank for 7 years, most recently as Senior E&S Advisor where she gathered valuable experience in securing positive E&S outcomes in international development.

As a firm believer in the potential of development finance and the private sector in emerging markets, Shibani possesses extensive sector experience in energy, infrastructure, mining, and metals, offering valuable insights into crucial sustainability issues such as human rights, gender equality, and the empowerment of indigenous peoples. Having lived and worked across various regions, including India, CIS, Africa, the UK, and the EU, Shibani remains acutely aware of global inequalities and staunchly advocates for finance to reach the most marginalised, creating a more inclusive and equitable world.

Stephanie Langerock- Secretary, Treasurer

Stephanie is a global citizen committed to the conservation and preservation of biodiversity and nature worldwide, both on land and in the ocean. She has a strong sense of fairness and justice. These values have guided her both in her private and her professional life. Early on Stephanie was fascinated by Cousteau's underwater documentaries. As a student she had an encounter with a couple of magnificent humpback whales that changed her life. This moving and unforgettable experience turned into a professional and personal springboard. Holder of a diploma in Latin American Languages and Cultures and an Executive Master in Business Administration, today, Stephanie, is the Director of the Biodiversity & Governance department of the Belgian Federal Public Service for Health, Food Chain Safety and Environment. Furthermore, she is the Belgian Commissioner for the International Whaling Commission (IWC) and for the Commission for the Conservation of Antarctic Marine Living Resources (CCAMLR). She has a demonstrated history in international relations and public policy. She is skilled in multiple languages, international negotiations, Leadership and Strategy. She is a strong advocate for biodiversity, ocean & nature and regeneration. She firmly believes that women have an important role to play in decision making and governance to build a more sustainable world in which we all live in harmony with each other and with Nature
